To Whom It May Concern;

CealDoctor™ is an engine healing treatment and is added to the crankcase oil of an engine, as a carrier, to repair "worn" reciprocating fossil fuelled engines. It uses advanced nanotechnology metal particles, namely, copper and nickel to heal the damaged and worn areas of cylinders and rings of reciprocating fossil fuelled engine(s).

The nano particles are thousands of time smaller than the micro particles used in the additive packages of major brand name multigrade or synthetic motor oils and are of such size and characteristic that it is physically impossible for the particles to clog the engine ports or filters.

In my professional opinion as a lubricant specialist and from my laboratory experience and tests conducted by the manufacturer and distributor of CealDoctor™, the nano particles could not in any way cause damage to an engine of any size or fuel type.
